Learn how Britain's biggest investor in small to medium sized businesses learnt from his failings, to become one of the worlds top Entrepreneurs. At 23, he passed up the opportunity for an academic career in economics to join a leading investment bank, Bankers Trust Australia. There he worked for a number of years in designing and managing swaps and other derivatives. During this period he demonstrated a strong ability at trading financial markets, and was then appointed head of the bank's proprietary trading desk, which achieved spectacular results by predicting big picture trends and by using a trading model he developed.
